Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.About the author (Ngozi Fulani) I first met Ahmar around 1999. I could not believe that this tall, striking, articulate and very mature young man was only 12 years old. Ahmar joined Emashi African Dance Ensemble as part of his Ka-Zimba training to improve both his dance and drumming skills. Ahmar had graduated to become an Ndugu one year previously and to this day has been a practising Ka-Zimba for over sixteen years. At the time of his graduation he and his younger sister were the youngest teachers in Ka-Zimba. As one of the members of Emashi, he accompanied our sister group, Education Africa Teaching (EAT), on an educational visit to Ghana in 2002. Around this same time, I became aware that he had written a number of songs including one called African and Black. This song, which has been performed internationally, touches audiences wherever it goes and it was especially well received during his performance at Ghana s Emancipation Day celebration. Ahmar s skills as a writer and singer were apparent from quite an early age. The fact that he had written this book, the first of its kind, as a teenager, comes as little surprise. I strongly feel that this book will soon find a willing producer to adapt it for the big screen. At the age of twenty two Ahmar is currently studying for his music degree at The British Academy of New Music. You can often find him on the stage whether it be singing or acting. He s performed in a number of musicals including Black Heroes in the Hall of Fame and more recently JA Story a musical on the...
