Excerpt from Oration: Delivered Before the Association of the Oldest Inhabitants of the District of Columbia, in Washington, on the Fourth of July, 1867 The habits of the country were almost entirely rural. A rich and virgin soil repaid the labors of agriculture. Men were content with the quiet enjoyments, and to perform the retired offices, of life - the education of their children, the practice of hospitality, and other neighborly duties and amenities - without an aspiration beyond. General Washington, in his retirement at Mount Vernon, after the close of the French war, who was by nature and sentiment an agriculturist, was a specimen of the country gentleman of his day. He relinquished the habits of life which were congenial to his tastes, and yielded himself, at the call of his country, to years of exile, toil, and risk, with no other motive than to serve and defend it. The Declaration of Independence, which has just been read so impressively by our friend Dr. Blake, is a summary of political wisdom, as it was an act...
