Bloomsbury Publishing PLC, United Kingdom, 2008. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 3rd New edition. 206 x 147 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. Fox Talbot is universally recognised as the father of modern photography. His calotype or Talbotype process was the first working photographic process to use the now familiar format of negatives and positives. He was an ambitious man but his interests spread far beyond the confines of photography and it was as a mathematician that he was awarded first Membership and then Fellowship of the Royal Society before the age of thirty-three. He was an accomplished astronomer, a keen archaeologists and a fluent master of Greek and Hebrew. He patented pioneering ideas for internal combustion engines and as early as 1840 and through his life was at the forefront of progressive scientific thinking in England.
